Artists Walk Across The World To Exhibit At R.A.

MYSTIC PICTURES FROM HIMALAYAN CAVE AND JUNGLE

TWO indomitable artists have tramped across thousands of miles of tiger-infested jungle, swamp and mountain fastnesses to exhibit at the Royal Academy, which opens on May 1.

Their names are Uki and Chandra. They have adventured through Bengal and Burma, from Java to China, penetrating the forbidden countries of the mystics to construct their pictures.

My parents did not like me to be a painter," said Uki, "crossing his cloth-bound robe. But I ran away, and wandered all over India, earning my living by polishing boots, singing in the streets, and selling my drawings."

"I lived with fakirs in mountain caves, among hill tribesmen in their forests, with bandits in Burma, and among dancing girls in Java."

"In one of the mountain caves in the Himalayas I learned to sit in meditative solitude, until suddenly my first vision appeared. A picture flashed before my mind's eye. I drew it, and others followed. All these I have are thus mystically inspired."

Then Chandra took up the tale. "I, too, wandered on foot from Calcutta to Cambodia. Once, I nearly met death in the jungle of Chittagong. I was captured by a tribe who threw me into a dungeon. For one week I was without food."

"One night a young woman crept in and somehow was able to free me from my guards. How she came there I do not know, and to this day she remains a mystery."

"Now we are overjoyed that we have at last walked here, in this wonderful place. All the great artists in the world wish to exhibit here, do they not?" he questioned naïvely, and with polite bows they walked out into the sunshine of Piccadilly.

Edwards replied, "I have got witnesses to prove that I did not."

Later, when charged at the police station with robbery with violence, she said, "I was guilty of assaulting the girl, but not guilty of stealing the money. I admit I hit her."

A remand was ordered.
